COOKIES AND HOW WE USE THEM

A cookie is a small file of letters and numbers that we put on your computer if you agree. These cookies allow us to distinguish you from other users of the website which helps us to provide you with a good experience when you browse our website and also allows us to improve our site.

Iain Jack Photography does not use cookies to collect and store personally identifiable information about you. To learn more about cookies and how to manage them, visit:

www.aboutcookies.org

Cookies are used to ensure correct Website functionality and usage however; if you wish to restrict or block any of the cookies set by our website(s) you can do this through your internet browser settings. The Help function within your browser should tell you how.

On occasion, we may implement embedded functionality from third party websites such as Facebook and Twitter which allows you to interact with social media networks. As a result, these networks may produce cookies via our Website which in turn will enable you to interact with them. For further information of the type of information held by these networks, please visit them to view their respective privacy policies.

Additionally, in line with a high proportion of established websites, we take advantage of Google Analytics which we use to understand how our Website is being used in order to improve the user experience and content. Specific user details remain anonymous. More information on how to reject or delete this cookie can be found at:
